Have just been told off by the health visitor
HI,
My little sprout is 7 months old. BLW since 6 months, and was doing well, I thought. I include him in nealtimes if he is awake for them (prob gets 2-4 a day), and he is feeding himself well. got him weighed today and he has dropped 2 lines on his chart. I got a real grilling about what he eatsand a strong suggestion that we should move to purees. I'm so upset - he is an obliging little soul to I'm sure he would let me spoon feed himbut I really don't want to! He is quite uninterested in BFing at the moment but has gone back to 2 (or 3!) night feeds so I am going with that at the moment. Offering extra feeds and I will offer more snacks. The trouble is that he will sit and eat for as long as the twins dobut as soon as they get down to play, so does he. So I need super high calorie food to get into him. I'd appreciate any thoughts
Please help.
didn't find the right solution from the Internet.
References: http://www.babyledweaning.com/forum/viewtopic.php?f=4&t=56812#p638942 Creative infographic design agency
Fhanks!